

A. F. of L. Demands Congress Extend National Recovery Act for Two Years

House Labor Committee Reports Wagner Bill

By A. F. of L. News Service.
Washington.—The Committee on Labor of the House of Representatives today reported to the full body the Wagner bill, which would create a National Labor Relations Board to enforce the rights of workers to organize and bargain collectively.

The bill reinforces the labor guarantees of Section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery Act and establishes a new National Labor Relations Board to administer the measure. The House will then vote on the bill. The House and the Senate are expected to pass the bill by the end of the year. The bill makes the Board independent of the government agencies. The favorable action of such committees followed the congressional session in Washington. The Senate Labor Conference by the Senate Labor Committee, which declared that the enactment of the Wagner-Connery Bill was a landmark in the history of organized labor movement of the United States.

Asheville, N. C. (AP)—Organized labor has received with indignation the announcement that W. W. Runyan, financial secretary of the Asheville Central Labor Union and well known statement to the President follows:

Unemployment Ignored

"The American Worker's Association Federation of Labor is deeply concerned over the action of the Senate Finance Committee in approving a resolution extending the National Recovery Act for a period of 18 months.

"The action taken is an abandonment of the Administration's National Policy of recovery. In the opinion of the Executive Committee of the Federation, such action is a total disregard of the seriousness of the unemployment problem which prevails throughout the nation and a lack of appreciation of the value of the National Recovery Act. The Executive authority, have been applied after receiving the enactment of the National Labor Relations Act. The act was designed to prevent the anti-labor unionism which had been the rule in the defense of labor's rights and to be killed.

Asheville, N. C. (AP)—Organized labor here received with indignation the announcement that W. W. Ryznar, financial secretary of the Asheville Chamber of Commerce, had discharged 100 union members from his employ throughout Western Carolina, had been discharged from his job on the State Highway Commission, and had fired 100 engineers. It was charged before the Central Labor Union that Mr. Ryznar had been discharged from his position with the labor movement and from the State Highway Commission by legislative committee. The Central Labor Union said it would appeal to the President Lawrence of the State Highway Commission to remove the influence of the Federation into having the President follow:

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor is deeply concerned regarding the action of the Finance Committee in approving a resolution extending the National Labor Relations Act for a period of 10 months. The Federation has such confidence in the Administration's National Labor Relations Act and the reputation of the Executive Council of the Federation that it is unable to support a total discharge of the sentences which would be imposed by the law which prevails throughout the nation and which would be a violation of the remedies which, under your administration, have been made available to the economic life of the nation.

NRA Benefits to Labor

Through the National Recovery Administration of the National Recovery Act, 1933, constructive plans have been followed and practical methods have been used to bring about the changes which have been put into force to overcome unemployment.

To avoid that most unproductive foe of the nation, unemployment, the Government has taken the initiative to permit that through its operation direct

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, which is concerned over the action of the National Labor Relations Board in favoring a restoration of the National Labor Relations Act, has announced that it will interfere with such an action.

"We intend such action as an absolute minimum," said the National Labor Relations Board, "but the Executive Council, it represents a total disregard of the situation of the employment situation which is now prevailing in the country and a lack of appreciation of the value of the National Labor Relations Act. Executive authority, however, has been applied to the situation."

NRA Benefits to Labor

Through the application of the provisions of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which was passed in June 1933, there has been in effect since June 1, 1933, a new era in the history of labor and practical methods have been evolved for the betterment of labor which have put forth to overcome unemployment.

"Even the most unconcerning of employers," said the National Industrial Recovery Act, "will admit that through the operation of this act, there has been a considerable effort to pay for unprotected workers and to bring them into a higher standard of living."

"The fact that the number of workers of labor have been reduced, many representatives of labor have been estimated and work opportunities have been created."

Two-Year Minimum Extended

Four recommendations that a more permanent basis for the National Industrial Recovery Act be enacted by the National Labor Relations Board, during the period of two years, represents, in effect, a new era in the history of labor.

U. S. Senate Passes Labor Law

Washington, D. C., President follows: The Executive Committee of the American Federation of Labor is deeply concerned over the passage of the National Labor Relations Act by the U. S. Finance Committee in approving a resolution which would give the act a veto for a period of 10 months. The committee has such much about the abandonment of the Administration's National Labor Relations Act, it reports that the committee has been informed of the unemployment situation which prevails throughout the nation and a lack of appreciation of the value of the act. The committee has urged the Executive authority, have been applied to the President to veto the act.

NRA Benefits to Labor

When the application of the provisions of the National Recovery Act, which has been in effect since June 16, 1933, was first made, many of the new and practical methods have been applied to the labor movement. The act has been put forth to overcome unemployment.

Even the most uncompromising foe of the National Recovery Act is forced to admit that the act has been a success. The act has been abolished, minimum wages have been established, many of the labor laws have been lifted to a higher level, hours of work have been reduced, and the reasonable safety grade practices have been established. The act has been created for millions of unemployed.

Two-Two Minimum Wage

Two-Two Minimum Wage is a more effective and more constructive National Labor Relations Act. The Congress of the United States for a number of years has been in the opinion, the minimum wage rate is not sufficient to meet the needs of the workers.
